

The image shows a bright, modern dining room. Three large, arched windows with white frames and brass-colored hardware are set into a light-colored wall. Each window has a semi-circular transom above it. The room is furnished with three round, light-colored wooden tables, each surrounded by matching wooden chairs with cream-colored upholstered seats. The tables are set with white linens, glassware, and cutlery. Modern lighting includes three cylindrical pendant lamps with brass-colored tops and white shades, and three square, textured brass-colored wall sconces. The floor is made of light-colored wood. The overall atmosphere is clean, bright, and sophisticated.

JoJo

Est. 1991. Jean-Georges' first restaurant, and named after his childhood nickname that his mother would call him, has recently reopened in a duplex townhouse on the Upper East Side, creating a modern and fresh design, yet still maintaining an understated, warm and friendly atmosphere. JoJo is a simple and casual neighborhood friendly restaurant serving a farm to table menu with mostly organic and local ingredients.

PRIVATE DINING:
