The Property

Chef Jean-Georges presents a casually elegant restaurant ensconced in the picturesque town of Pound Ridge, New York. Here, Jean-Georges cultivates a truly seasonal, farm-to-table cuisine, with ingredients sourced from the Hudson Valley and New England, whenever possible.

Constructed in 1833 as a residence and serving later as an inn, the building has been painstakingly renovated to preserve as many of the original materials as possible, including four working fireplaces. Thomas Juul-Hansen designed the restaurant's interior with a modern yet rustic sensibility; zinc and marble accent stone and reclaimed wood. The restaurant's lighting, artfully conceived by Hervé Descottes, employs paper shades and Edison light fixtures to create warmth throughout.
